FROM RICKY'S DESK

We often speak of God using some big words to describe his infinite nature. We refer to him as omniscient because he is all knowing. We rightly call him omnipresent because he is everywhere at all times. He also is omnipotent, meaning that his power is inestimable because that power is perfect and endless. God is therefore all knowing, ever present, and all powerful.

He also alone has the trait of immutability. Simply put, this means that God is unchanging. God is eternally the same. This means that whatever it is that comes our way in life, God does not change. When the market tanks, God is the same. When business is booming and everything looks great, God is the same. When the family is falling apart, the kids are out of control, the marriage is failing, and no one seems to care or notice, God is the same. Whatever variations and vagaries we face in life, whether minor or major, God is the same forever.

God the Creator is the same as God the Liberator, God the Disciplinarian, God the Friend, God the Provider and Sustainer, God the One Who Knows Us, God the Protector, God the Warrior, and on and on and on. God does not change. He is the same forever.

The fact that this perfect, immutable God has invited us through Jesus Christ into eternal life is incomprehensible. We are blessed far beyond any capacity to comprehend to be children of the God who never changes.

--Ricky
